Kim's Daughter as Successor

North Korean Leader Grooming Her to Be a Future Leader

Pyongyang: Will North Korea a nation deeply rooted in patriarchal norms hand over the reins of power to a woman for the first time? Is the country's leader, Kim Jong Un, taking steps in that direction? Defectors who have fled North Korea suggest the answer is yes. According to them, as well as intelligence sources from South Korea, Kim Jong Un has been bringing his 13-year-old daughter, Kim Ju-ae, along to missile tests and military parades for the past four years. This is reportedly part of a strategy to groom her as a future leader.

Under the name 'Parivartana Rajaneeti Party'

Vijayasai Reddy announces a new political party

Vijayawada, November 11: A new political party has emerged in the state of Andhra Pradesh. Former MP Vijayasai Reddy has announced the formation of a new party called the 'Parivartana Rajaneeti Party' (Transformation Politics Party). He has designed the party flag to feature a 'Dharmachakra' (wheel of righteousness) in the center, set against a background of white and saffron. Launched this political party in the presence of the gods": Speaking on the occasion, the leader of the Parivartana Rajaneeti Party, Vijayasai Reddy, stated that he had launched the party in the presence of the gods. He expressed his hope that the people themselves would bring about change. He remarked that the future of Andhra Pradesh does not lie in the hands of any single leader, but rather in the hands of the people. He criticized both the ruling party and the opposition, claiming that both are making mistakes. He noted that neither side seems to see the truth, the facts, or the actual needs of the people. He emphasized that whoever commits a wrong must be questioned, asserting that questioning is the right of the people. He highlighted that the goal of the 'PRP' (Parivartana Rajaneeti Party) is to bring out the leadership qualities inherent within the people. He further alleged that the five crore people of Andhra Pradesh are currently being governed by just two families.

WHAT WILL ANOTHER POLITICAL PARTY ACHIEVE?

Will Changing Flags Be Enough? When Will Real Change Reach the Lives of Ordinary People?
Can Vijayasai Reddy, Who Now Questions the Dominance of Two Political Families, Answer Questions About His Own Political Past?
Is the Promise of 66% Opportunities for Youth Practically Achievable?““A Genuine Political Alternative or Yet Another Experiment to Reshape Electoral Equations?

Andhra Pradesh has witnessed the emergence of yet another political party. Former Rajya Sabha Member and once-influential YSR Congress Party leader V. Vijayasai Reddy has embarked on a new political journey by launching the Parivartana Rajaneethi Party (PRP). Unveiling the party flag in Vijayawada, he declared his intention to put an end to the political dominance of two families in the state. He promised greater opportunities for young people, the development of a new generation of political leaders, and an alternative political platform for the people. “ However, one fundamental question arises in the minds of ordinary citizens: What tangible benefit will another political party bring to Andhra Pradesh, a state that has already witnessed the rise and fall of numerous political formations? There is nothing inherently wrong with establishing a new political party in a democracy. Fresh ideas, alternative perspectives, and emerging leadership are essential for a healthy democratic system. However, a new political party must represent more than a new name, a different flag, or an attractive slogan. It must demonstrate how its approach to governance will differ from that of existing parties and explain how it intends to address problems that successive governments have failed to resolve. More importantly, leaders who were once integral to the established political system must be willing to examine their own past when presenting themselves as champions of political transformation.“

A Participant in Yesterday’s Politics — A Champion of Change Today? : Vijayasai Reddy is certainly no newcomer to politics. For several years, he occupied influential positions within the YSR Congress Party. As a Rajya Sabha Member, a close associate of the party's top leadership, and an important spokesperson for the party at the national level, he played a significant role in shaping its political presence. Even during the YSRCP's tenure in power, he remained a prominent figure within the political establishment. Against this background, his present call to end the dominance of two political families naturally raises several questions. Questioning dynastic politics is not wrong. In fact, political inheritance and the concentration of power within families deserve serious public scrutiny. But when someone who previously played a significant role in that very political structure suddenly presents himself as an advocate of change, the public has every right to seek an explanation. What shortcomings did Vijayasai Reddy identify in the political system of which he was once a part? Why did he not publicly challenge those shortcomings while occupying influential positions? What specific reforms does he now propose to correct them? These are not merely political criticisms. They are legitimate questions concerning accountability and credibility. Another important aspect deserves attention. In January 2025, Vijayasai Reddy announced his retirement from politics and resigned from his Rajya Sabha membership. Now, he has returned to active politics by establishing his own party. Every individual has the right to reconsider personal and political decisions. Nevertheless, a leader who once declared his intention to withdraw from politics owes the public an explanation of the circumstances that prompted his return. Such transparency will play an important role in determining his political credibility.““ Opportunities for Youth or Another Chapter of Political Promises? : The proposal to provide 66 per cent opportunities to young people within the Parivartana Rajaneethi Party appears attractive at first glance. There is an undeniable need for greater youth participation in Indian politics. However, the real question concerns the meaning of the promised opportunities. Does the 66 per cent commitment apply to party membership, organisational positions, election nominations, or participation in actual decision-making? Simply organising youth meetings, inviting young people onto political platforms, or encouraging them to carry party flags cannot be described as genuine political empowerment. Young people must also be entrusted with the authority to make meaningful political decisions. Talented individuals from economically disadvantaged families, women, and socially marginalised communities should be given fair opportunities to emerge as political leaders. Furthermore, if decision-making remains concentrated around the party founder, the formation of a new political organisation will merely reproduce the old political culture under a different name. Vijayasai Reddy has stated that his objective is to develop new political leadership rather than establish himself as another dominant leader. The true test of this declaration will be whether he is prepared to create an organisational structure in which another capable individual can eventually lead the party independently.

Kim’s Daughter as Successor

Since its formation in 1948, North Korea has been under the dictatorial rule of the Kim family for three generations. Thae Yong-ho, a former North Korean diplomat, stated that the protocol currently being extended to Kim Ju-ae effectively signals her designation as Kim’s successor; he noted that similar honors and courtesies were shown to Kim Jong Un himself when he was named as the successor. Currently, within the ruling Workers' Party, there is only one woman serving as a director across its 17 departments Kim’s sister, Kim Yo Jong. Defectors point out that in such a male-dominated society, the prospect of accepting a young girl as the "Supreme Leader" is something some find difficult to digest. However, others analyze that in North Korea, the Kim family is regarded as gods who rule over the people; therefore, gender discrimination is not a major issue there.

Supreme Court’s Landmark Ruling on Property Rights

first page continue

Delhi: The Supreme Court has delivered a significant verdict regarding property rights, clarifying that a grandson has no birthright to property that his father acquired through the partition of his own father’s (the grandfather’s) estate. Under Section 8 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956, property acquired by a father in this manner is deemed his personal property rather than joint family property. This ruling was issued by a bench comprising Justice Augustine George Masih and Justice Sunita Agarwal. The court was hearing a petition filed by J. Rajesh (a minor), represented by his mother, J. Gomathi. Rajesh had sought a half-share in a property located in Chennai. His father had acquired this property in 1994 through a compromise decree in a partition suit and subsequently sold it in 1997. While hearing this case, the Supreme Court provided a comprehensive explanation of the provisions of the Hindu Succession Act. It stated that when a Hindu male dies intestate (without leaving a will), his property devolves upon his Class I heirs in accordance with Section 8 of the Act. The Court clarified that while this category of heirs includes a son and the son of a predeceased son, it does not include the son of a living son (i.e., a grandson).““The Court further clarified that property acquired by a son through partition is held by him in his individual capacity and does not constitute Hindu Undivided Family (HUF) property. Once a partition has taken place, the character of the property as 'joint family property' ceases to exist, and the heirs hold their respective shares in their individual capacity. Consequently, the children (grandsons) of such an individual do not acquire any birthright over that property. The Court observed that the succession had opened even before the petitioner (the grandson) was born; therefore, neither Section 6 of the Hindu Succession Act nor the Tamil Nadu amendment which grants equal rights to daughters is applicable to this case. For these reasons, the Supreme Court upheld the judgment of the High Court and dismissed the appeal filed by the grandson, who had sought a share in the property.

Reining in excessive fares by private buses?

of the Public Interest Litigation (PIL) filed by Chittineni Sambasiva Rao, a resident of Vijayawada. He brought to the Court’s attention that private operators arbitrarily raise prices by exploiting the surge in passenger traffic during festivals and weekends.

On Tuesday, a division bench comprising Chief Justice Lisa Gill and Justice Challa Gunaranjan heard the petition. The petitioner urged that, in accordance with Section 67(1) of the Motor Vehicles Act, the government should fix maximum fare limits based on the type of bus and the distance traveled.

In the petition, the petitioner requested the establishment of a dedicated toll-free helpline and a WhatsApp number for passengers to lodge complaints regarding excessive fares, and also urged that details of bus permits be made available online. In the past, authorities have taken action against private buses that violated regulations during festive seasons. During inspections conducted in January this year, coinciding with the Sankranti festival, cases were registered against 937 buses, and fines totaling Rs. 53.86 lakh were collected; of these, 217 cases were related to the charging of excessive fares.“Taking the petitioner's arguments into account, the bench directed the Commissioner of the Transport Department to examine the submission and arrive at an appropriate decision within two months.

"Must these two families continue to rule?": Vijayasai Reddy questioned whether these two families must continue to dominate, stating that such hegemony is unacceptable. He asked, "Must the Chief Ministers, ministers, and MLAs all come from these two families?" He further questioned, "If a father becomes the Chief Minister, must his son also become the Chief Minister?" He asserted that leaders exist—and will continue to emerge—within every caste and community. He stated that his party’s goal is to put an end to dynastic politics and ensure that a youth leader becomes the Chief Minister. Expressing confidence, he remarked that significant political upheavals are inevitable in the coming days—much like the eerie calm that precedes a storm. He added that the public will soon witness the explosive reaction to the oppressive and chaotic rule of the current administration. Vijayasai Reddy issued a direct challenge to this "wicked" governance.“The role of the people does not end with casting a vote; in fact, that is where their true role in a democracy begins, he noted. He pointed out that amidst the self-congratulatory rhetoric and political mudslinging between the ruling party and the opposition, the truth, actual data, and the fundamental needs of the people are being sidelined. He urged citizens to hold anyone accountable—whether it be himself, Chief Minister Chandrababu Naidu, or YSRCP leader Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy—emphasizing that questioning those in power is a fundamental right of the people in a democracy. He clarified that he has not come to present himself as yet another leader through his 'Parivartana Rajaneeti Party' (Politics of Transformation); rather, his objective is to identify leadership qualities within the youth and groom them into capable leaders. He remarked that the future of the five crore people of Andhra Pradesh is currently being dictated by just two families. He reiterated that his primary mission is to recognize the leadership potential in the youth and ensure that a capable young person is elevated to the position of Chief Minister. Vijayasai Reddy expressed a desire to put an end to the leadership of two arrogant families in the state.“He noted that every caste and social group possesses individuals with the capability to contribute to the state's development. He stated that they are laying the foundation for a new political culture, challenging the outdated practices and the "evil" governance prevalent in Andhra Pradesh politics. He remarked that this political journey is not his alone; rather, it is a struggle for the self-respect of the five crore people of Andhra Pradesh. He asserted that leadership positions should not be inherited, but should instead be earned based on the people's mandate and individual merit. He explained that an impending "political upheaval" would usher in a transformative era of politics—one that prioritizes the welfare of the downtrodden and weaker sections. Mentioning his active role in the formation of the YSRCP, he clarified that he has now moved on, adding that the doors of his current party remain open to those who wish to join from his former fold. He expressed confidence that his party would contest all 175 assembly seats in Andhra Pradesh. Furthermore, he pointed out that 26 castes had been removed from the Backward Classes (BC) list in Telangana, and stated that he intends to discuss this issue with Chief Minister Revanth Reddy.

IS THE TAHSILDAR THE "KINGMAKER" BEHIND THAT MYSTERIOUS PROJECT?

first page continue

State Bureau, Pen Power | Tadepalligudem, November 11: Why was a Tahsildar who had already been transferred brought back to the very same posting? What prompted the authorities to give priority to the reappointment of Sunil Kumar when another officer could have been appointed in his place? Was the decision taken purely on administrative grounds, or were there other interests behind the move?""These are some of the questions now being raised over developments in the Tadepalligudem revenue administration. The return of Tahsildar Sunil Kumar to his previous posting has reportedly triggered fresh discussions and speculation in local circles. Questions are being raised about whether political recommendations influenced his reappointment and whether he was brought back to complete certain specific assignments. The circumstances surrounding his return have become a subject of growing public interest, particularly amid speculation about certain activities allegedly taking place within the revenue administration."" What Was the Real Purpose Behind Bringing Sunil Kumar Back? : Transfers and reappointments are part of routine government administration. However, when an officer is transferred from a particular station and subsequently brought back to the same position, questions naturally arise about the circumstances that led to such a decision. The same questions are now being raised in the case of Sunil Kumar. Why was he transferred in the first place? What administrative circumstances necessitated his return? Were any recommendations made in favour of his reappointment? If so, who made them? What reasons were officially recorded in the government orders relating to his transfer and subsequent reappointment? Only a clear explanation supported by official records can put an end to the speculation surrounding his return. What Is the Mysterious Project Allegedly Moving Forward Behind the Scenes? Reports and discussions suggesting that a particular matter or project is being handled discreetly within the Tahsildar's office have become a subject of local interest. Was this alleged project the principal reason for bringing Sunil Kumar back to Tadepalligudem? Have activities connected with it gained momentum following his return? Have any significant administrative decisions already been taken?""More importantly, what exactly is this project? : According to information received by Pen Power from sources considered reliable, certain matters are allegedly being handled with considerable confidentiality. However, the precise nature of the reported project, its purpose, and the individuals associated with it have yet to be independently established. The circumstances surrounding these claims call for closer examination. Whether this is an officially sanctioned government project, an administrative assignment, or an entirely different matter remains a key question."" Is There Growing Discontent Among Revenue Employees? : Another issue attracting attention concerns the alleged treatment of lower-level employees working at the Tahsildar's office. Are staff members facing excessive work pressure? Has coordination between senior officers and subordinate employees deteriorated? Are lower-level employees being treated with the respect and dignity expected within a government institution? Have internal differences begun affecting the functioning of the office? Information reaching Pen Power suggests that relations between the Tahsildar and certain subordinate employees may have become strained. Sources describe an atmosphere of considerable tension, with differences allegedly reaching a stage where even minor issues could trigger disagreements. However, the exact extent of the reported dissatisfaction, its underlying causes, and whether employees have formally raised grievances remain to be verified. If such internal tensions exist, they raise legitimate concerns about administrative coordination, employee morale, and the smooth delivery of public services."" Are Mobile Phones Prohibited Inside the Tahsildar's Chamber? : Another intriguing aspect of the controversy concerns reports that individuals entering Tahsildar Sunil Kumar's chamber are allegedly required to leave their mobile phones outside. "Is such a restriction actually being implemented? : If so, does it apply only to office employees, or are members of the public and other visitors also required to comply? Was the restriction introduced for security or confidentiality reasons? Is it part of an official administrative procedure, or does another explanation exist? A Tahsildar's office is a public institution where citizens regularly approach officials regarding land records, certificates, grievances, and other revenue-related matters. If restrictions on mobile phones are being imposed, the administration should clarify their purpose, scope, and official basis. The reported practice has not yet been independently verified, and its existence alone would not establish any wrongdoing. Nevertheless, a transparent explanation could help address the questions being raised."" Has the Purpose Behind the Reappointment Already Been Accomplished? : The debate surrounding Sunil Kumar's return has given rise to another significant question. If there was a specific objective behind his reappointment, has that objective already been achieved, or are further decisions still pending? What major administrative decisions have been taken since he resumed charge? Have any previously pending files been cleared? Have there been significant developments in matters that remained unresolved during his earlier tenure? Were any special assignments entrusted to him following his return?These questions can be answered only through a careful examination of the relevant transfer and reappointment orders, official files, and subsequent administrative decisions. Such scrutiny is particularly important in a department responsible for land administration and other matters that directly affect the rights and interests of ordinary citizens."" Political Intervention or a Routine Administrative Decision? : The Tahsildar's office plays a crucial role in matters involving land ownership, revenue records, government certificates, permissions, and various public services. Public confidence in the impartial and transparent functioning of such an institution is therefore essential. Government officials are expected to be appointed and transferred in accordance with administrative requirements and established procedures. However, information and local discussions suggesting that political recommendations may have influenced Sunil Kumar's reappointment have raised questions about the decision-making process. The existence of a political recommendation, even if established, would not by itself prove improper interference or misconduct. The crucial issue is whether the appointment complied with applicable rules and served a legitimate administrative purpose. The authorities concerned have a responsibility to clarify the actual circumstances that led to Sunil Kumar's return to Tadepalligudem. Making the relevant administrative details public would help address the speculation and strengthen confidence in the revenue administration."" Is the Real Story Yet to Unfold? : The questions surrounding the Tadepalligudem Tahsildar's office are unlikely to disappear until the relevant facts are brought into the public domain. What was the compelling reason for bringing Sunil Kumar back? Who played a role in his reappointment, and to what extent? Is any special project or assignment currently being handled within the office? Is the reported dissatisfaction among subordinate employees genuine? What is the truth behind the alleged restrictions on mobile phones inside the Tahsildar's chamber? These are matters that require examination based on verifiable evidence rather than speculation alone. The response of Tahsildar Sunil Kumar and the officials concerned is equally important in establishing the complete picture. Official documents, administrative records, explanations from the authorities, and statements from representatives of revenue employees could help clarify the situation. ltimately, the issue is not merely about the transfer or reappointment of an individual officer. It concerns transparency, administrative accountability, and public confidence in the functioning of government institutions. Regardless of the reasons behind any appointment, the fundamental question remains whether the decision was lawful, transparent, and consistent with the larger public interest. Pen Power will continue examining these developments and seek to bring verified information before its readers." "" COMING UP IN PEN POWER EXCLUSIVE | EPISODE–3" WHAT IS REALLY HAPPENING INSIDE THE TAHSILDAR'S OFFICE?" Must Visitors Leave Their Mobile Phones Outside Before Entering the Tahsildar's Chamber?"Is there an official restriction, and what is the reason behind it?" What Is Happening Between the Tahsildar and His Subordinate Staff? "Are internal disagreements affecting the working atmosphere of the revenue office?"What Is the Special Assignment Allegedly Linked to Sunil Kumar's Return?

Rs. 12,000-cr Gramakantam land scam in Amaravati: YSRCP

Tadepalli, Nov 11: YSRCP State spokesperson Vangaveeti Narendra said Chandrababu Naidu's government has engineered a Rs. 12,000-crore land scam in Amaravati by converting private patta lands belonging to TDP leaders and supporters into "gramakantam" lands and exempting them from land pooling.""Addressing the media at the YSRCP central office, Narendra said Amaravati's land requirement had expanded from 34,000 to 55,000 acres. Of this, 6,473.72 acres were identified as exempted land, including nearly 3,000 acres under gramakantam, valued at approximately Rs. 12,000 crore. While 698 farmers applied for exemptions, only 17 received approval, most of them TDP supporters and Amaravati JAC figures. Farmers who surrendered land still await promised developed plots, while politically connected individuals receive preferential treatment.""Narendra questioned the purchase of 25,000 square yards from Kancherla Sambasiva Rao for Chandrababu's proposed "Raj Mahal" at Rs. 7,500 per square yard, totalling approximately Rs. 18 crore, while land in the same area is claimed to command Rs. 50,000 per square yard. Narendra also questioned permission for commercial complexes and houses on land meant for parks, parking and public purposes.""Demanding answers from Chandrababu Naidu, Nara Lokesh and P. Narayana, Narendra called for disclosure of all beneficiaries, survey numbers and exemption orders, and an explanation for approving just 17 of 698 applications.

Addressing the media at the party's central office, he demanded answers over delayed roster details, unequal district-wise allocations and irregularities in Mega DSC-2025.""Ravichandra questioned why the government began accepting applications on November 11 after releasing the short notification on October 13 and the detailed notification on November 3, but disclosed roster points only at midnight on November 10. He said withholding category-wise vacancy details until the last moment created confusion and unnecessary distress among aspirants.""Of the 2,721 posts, 906 are School Assistants, 1,205 SGTs, 350 Special Education teachers, 30 Principals, 81 PGTs, 113 TGTs, two Physical Directors and 34 PETs. She condemned attacks on YS Bharathi, a businesswoman supporting food distribution and free education, through films, paid social media campaigns and character assassination.""Questioning Pawan's claims about protecting women, she criticised his handling of sexual harassment involving a Jana Sena MLA, saying a token suspension was followed by his return to the party leadership's side. She also questioned his silence on harassment of female officials and violence against women.""She recalled Geethanjali, who celebrated receiving a house under YS Jagan's government, and said TDP's online harassment drove her to suicide. "Not PRP, but AAP": KA Paul renames V. Vijayasai Reddy's new party within three hours

Ajay Maddhiboyina"~2 minutes"Praja Shanthi Party (PSP) chief KA Paul has leveled sharp criticism against former MP V. Vijayasai Reddy's new political party. He mocked the name 'Praja Parivartana Party' (People's Transformation Party), labeling it instead as an 'Aparivartana Avaneethi Party' (Party of Stagnation and Corruption).""""Not PRP, but AAP": KA Paul renames V. Vijayasai Reddy's new party within three hours""Disha, Web Desk: Praja Shanthi Party chief KA Paul has criticized former MP V. Vijayasai Reddy's new party. He ridiculed it by calling it an 'Aparivartana Avaneethi Party' (AAP)—a party of stagnation and corruption—rather than a 'Praja Parivartana Party' (PRP). Paul lashed out, stating that transformation must first begin with Vijayasai Reddy himself. He alleged that although Reddy had previously claimed he would quit politics, he has now launched this party solely to protect his ill-gotten wealth. Paul demanded that Reddy surrender all his assets—spanning from Srikakulam to Hyderabad—along with his plundered funds, to the government.""Paul questioned why the CBI has not initiated an investigation into Vijayasai Reddy's assets and asked, "Whose arrow is he?" He pointed out that for the past 80 years, the state has been governed by only 12 leaders from the Reddy community, and asked, "What about the BCs, who make up over 60% of the population, and the Kapus, who account for 27%?" He remarked scathingly that only "thoughtless" individuals from the BC, SC, and ST communities would join Vijayasai Reddy's party. Paul further alleged that this new party was announced specifically to undermine Y.S. Jagan's vote bank and to serve the interests of other political forces. K.A. Paul has called for an end to the dominance of the Reddy community in politics, urging the BC, Kapu, SC, ST, and minority groups to unite.

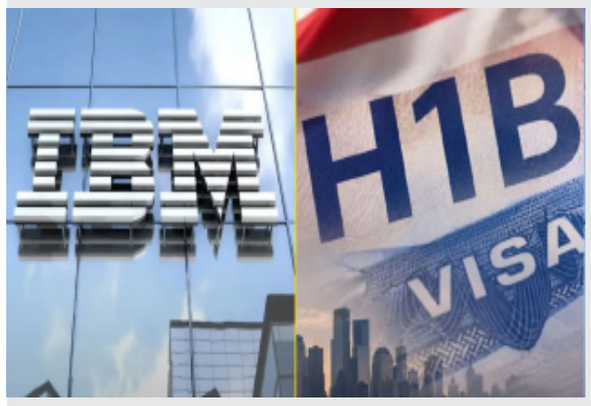

Can't Medical Colleges be completed with funds spent on Capital Buildings' Glasses?

Tadepalli, Nov 11: YSRCP Doctors Wing Working President and former MLA Dr Gopireddy Srinivasa Reddy questioned why Chief Minister Chandrababu Naidu is spending ?4,500 crore on glass structures for capital buildings while refusing to complete government medical colleges. Addressing the media at the YSRCP central office, he said public healthcare has been sacrificed for extravagant projects and private interests.""He said Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy initiated 17 government medical colleges, allocating approximately 50 acres and ?500 crore for each, with a vision to create 2,000 additional MBBS seats alongside nursing, dental, physiotherapy and other healthcare facilities. Five colleges began functioning during the YSRCP government, while three more became operational subsequently. Instead of completing the remaining nine, the coalition government is handing them to private operators on 66-year leases.""Dr Gopireddy questioned the decision to provide ?1,630 crore in Viability Gap Funding (VGF) to private players despite the government already providing land and investing thousands of crores in construction. He said the same funds could provide nearly ?200 crore per college to complete the remaining nine institutions. The government would also bear teaching and non-teaching staff salaries for the first two years, while private operators would benefit from management quota fees and hospital revenues.""He described the VGF arrangement as a scheme designed to secure kickbacks for Lokesh and his associates. Cutting extravagant expenditure on chartered flights and helicopters could also help fund these colleges. Highlighting their public importance, he said Piduguralla Medical College receives 700–800 outpatients daily, while other colleges serve 1,000–1,500 outpatients and 300–400 inpatients. He declared that YSRCP would reverse the privatisation decisions upon returning to power and restore government control over these public assets

A setback for foreign tech professionals in the US- IBM's major decision regarding visas

- IBM Consulting to discontinue visa and Green Card sponsorship
- Decision follows strict regulations imposed by the Trump administration
- Affected employees must either work from outside the US or leave the company
- Similar restrictions were placed on firms like Infosys and TCS last month
- Company cites evolving skill requirements and changing client needs as the reason

Usa: Tech giant IBM has dealt a blow to foreign employees working in the US, announcing that it will no longer provide US visa or Green Card sponsorship for the majority of roles within its consulting division. This move by IBM Consulting—which employs over 150,000 people has sparked concern among foreign professionals in the tech sector. The decision is particularly significant given the Donald Trump administration's stringent stance on the hiring of foreign tech talent. Just last month, the government suspended companies such as Microsoft, Adobe, Infosys, TCS, and Cognizant from the "Permanent Labor Certification" process a critical step in the issuance of Green Cards to foreign employees. An IBM spokesperson told Reuters that while the company has utilized U.S. visa programs over the past few years to address skill gaps, its reliance on them has gradually decreased. The spokesperson explained that this shift is due to an increased availability of talent in the market and changing client requirements. According to a Bloomberg report, employees affected by this decision will either need to transfer to IBM offices outside the United States or leave the company by the end of this year. It is worth noting that the Trump administration had imposed a $100,000 fee on new H-1B visa petitions last year.

Skyroot Gears Up for Second Launch!

Key Engine Test Successful Liftoff Set for December!

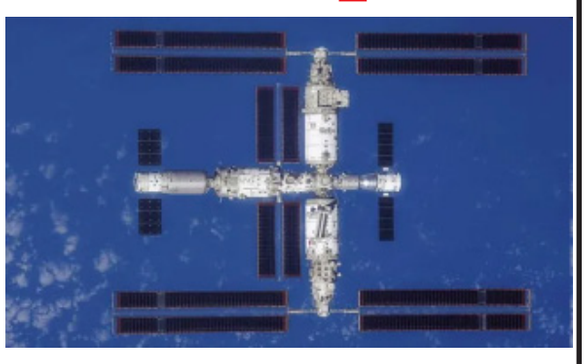

Hyderabad: Private sector participation in India's space industry is gaining momentum. Hyderabad-based Skyroot Aerospace has accelerated preparations for the second launch of its Vikram-1 rocket. As part of this, the company successfully tested the 'Raman-1' thruster engine a critical component of the rocket thereby overcoming a major hurdle for the upcoming mission. The Raman-1 thruster plays a specialized role in the Vikram-1's flight; unlike the primary engines that propel the rocket upward, this thruster manages the rocket's orientation specifically controlling its 'roll' (rotation around its longitudinal axis). This ensures the rocket remains correctly oriented and stays on its intended trajectory throughout its flight. Skyroot has announced the completion of all tests for the Raman-1 and has already begun the necessary preparations for the second launch. Furthermore, the hardware for the first stage of the Vikram-1 rocket has been transported to the Satish Dhawan Space Centre, where the integration of rocket components and various technical evaluations are currently underway. Skyroot aims to conduct the second launch of the Vikram-1 in December 2026 or early January 2027. The company is preparing plans to commence full-scale commercial launches starting from its third mission. On July 18, the Vikram-1 rocket succeeded in its maiden flight, dubbed 'Mission Agaman.

It reached an Earth orbit at an altitude of approximately 450 kilometers and deployed its payloads into the designated orbit. With this achievement, Skyroot Aerospace made history as the first private entity to successfully launch an orbital-class rocket.

A Remarkable Feat by China in Space

The 'Dragon Country' Creates the Coldest Temperature in the Universe!
- A new record set by scientists aboard China's Tiangong Space Station - The lowest temperature ever recorded in the universe: 9.7 picokelvins
- Achieved by cooling Rubidium -87 atoms using lasers
- Paving the way for research in a microgravity environment
- This experiment is crucial for quantum sensors and studies in physics

China: China has reached another historic milestone in space exploration. Scientists working aboard the Tiangong Space Station have set a record by achieving the coldest temperature ever recorded—a feat unmatched anywhere else in the world. They announced that a temperature of 9.7 picokelvins was reached during the experiment. The details of these findings have been published in the prestigious journal 'Science.' A team of scientists from Peking University and the Chinese Academy of Sciences conducted this extraordinary experiment, utilizing a Bose-Einstein condensate consisting of approximately 20,000 Rubidium-87 atoms. In the microgravity environment of the space station, these atoms were cooled to extremely low temperatures using laser traps and other cooling techniques. The group of atoms was then observed for seven seconds, and their temperature was calculated based on their rate of expansion. This temperature was found to be 9.7 picokelvins (0.0000000000097 Kelvins). To put this in perspective, it is approximately 280 billion times colder than the average temperature of the universe, which is 2.7 Kelvins. While a temperature of 38 picokelvins had previously been recorded during a free-fall experiment in Germany in 2021, this new achievement has surpassed that record. Conducting such experiments on Earth is extremely difficult due to gravity, which causes atoms to fall rapidly, making it impossible to observe them for an extended period. However, the microgravity environment in space has made it possible to overcome this challenge. Scientists stated that this experiment serves as a testament to the progress they have made in controlling ultra-cold matter. Researchers believe that this achievement will pave the way for the development of more precise quantum sensors in the future, as well as for studies in fundamental physics in space.

Chandigarh: A man, suspicious of his wife, strangled her to death. He then removed her clothing and discarded her body, attempting to make it appear as though she had been raped and murdered. Following an investigation, the police arrested the man. The incident took place in the Hoshiarpur district of Punjab. Jahadur Islam, a native of the Malda district in West Bengal, had migrated to Punjab with his wife, Rubina Khatun. The couple resided in Madinpur village, near Mukerian, and earned a living by cleaning drains and sewage systems. Jahadur suspected that his wife, Rubina, was having an extramarital affair, which led to frequent disputes between them. Recently, after finishing work, Jahadur took Rubina to a pond near the village, where he strangled her to death using a towel. He then removed her clothes and left her naked body in a nearby sugarcane field, attempting to create the impression that she had been raped and murdered. Furthermore, after the murder, Jahadur contacted his brother-in-law, Sohel Ali who hails from the Katihar district of Bihar by phone. He claimed that his wife, Rubina, was missing.
